

Thomas Elected to ICLUBcentral Board of Directors

Madison Heights, Mich. — June 5, 2009 — The NAIC/BetterInvesting board of directors is pleased to announce that James Thomas, a nationally recognized BetterInvesting volunteer, on June 5 was elected to ICLUBcentral's board of directors. He brings an extensive knowledge of investing and accounting software products to the ICLUBcentral board.

Jim, a former software design engineer for Microsoft, joined BetterInvesting in 1995 and by 1998 was teaching classes for the Puget Sound Chapter. In 2003 he became associate director for the chapter and two years later was named the chapter's vice president of education.

He's also a frequent presenter at the BetterInvesting National Convention and in 2006 received the Dick Dwyer Service Award.

Jim's experience also includes serving as a computer systems analyst for the Washington State Public Health Laboratory.

We welcome Jim to ICLUBcentral's board as we continue considering other candidates to join him during this exciting new era for BetterInvesting and ICLUBcentral.
